MOOD:  deeelighted

T. and I are excited as heck to say that, should our friends and relations wish to gift us with virtual toaster ovens, pasta makers, and juicers, we are registering with Marriage Equality USA! (<https://www.livejournal.com/away?to=http%3A//www.marriageequality.org/meusa/>).

You can donate in honor of us (trollcatz and T., or Daphne and Tricia, as you like) and even add a note that will appear on the site. How cool is this?*

*answer: Very!

Oh, what a useful widget that thing up there is. :)

(Back in '75, I don't think the idea of "give to this wonderful organization instead of buying something" was out there; if it was, I hadn't run across it. Much better as a gift than blenders and crockpots and - oh ghod, the worst gift I got, a plexiglass wine rack. lck.) (Though I still treasure the silver candleholder/centerpiece Aunt Dot gave me. (Mine's shinier. And has ivy in the center, and lives on top of my grandmother's china closet. But then, I'm all about not the things themselves so much as the stories attached to them...)

Yaaayyy! It is a swell widget. 8>D

I fully expect T.'s mom to find the donation thing an excellent notion...and that it won't stop her from doing whatever she had planned already. Thank heaven my future mother-in-outlaw is a force for good!

Very easy-to-use widget, too. grin

That is awesome like a very awesome thing!

Honestly, I think the only wedding gift we got that sees regular use today (pushing twelve years since the wedding!) are the joker hats from the ren faire that my father-in-law got as on a whim.

Marriage rights for everyone will do so much more! For so many people!

Joker hats! Fake bricks! Potato guns! Punching nuns and finger monsters! These are the things that couples really need!

(Besides marriage equality, of course. g)

Tricia, not Trisha. Dammit. Very sorry. I can spell, I swear. I blame the heat. :/

Many happy returns. :-)

She doesn't mind even a little bit. Instead, she says, "Thank you a whole big bunch!" (And so do I.)

I'm pleased you guys liked the idea.

It's perfect. (I may have no money at all, but I always set aside a bit at the beginning of the month for sending donations to things, 'cause, you know, that's up there with food as a necessity in my world. I'm trying to teach myself to stop apologizing that it isn't more... very very wry)

Meant to ask where (or even if) you'd registered; now I know. This is an awesome idea.

Because what do we need? More books? (Well, yes, but we're going to get those for ourselves as a matter of course. g)

It pleases me ridiculously much.
